Mr. Grady

Yes that will work I just may not get to do the upgrades to the house but my debts should be paid off.

Hi Christopher,

To get exactly $250,000 in cash-out, the math would require a total new loan of $627,000 (your $377k existing mortgage + the $250k cash).

Because our Private Residential Cash-Out program caps at an 85% Loan-to-Value (LTV), your property would need to appraise for roughly $738,000 to support a $627,000 total loan.

If you truly feel the home would appraise closer to $738,000 today, then the $250k cash-out is absolutely possible.

However, if your earlier estimate of $600,000 is the more realistic current value, then our 85% limit caps the maximum total loan size at $510,000. That means the most cash we can pull out for you based on a $600k value is right around $133,000 ($510k max loan minus your $377k payoff).

If we have to work within that $133,000 cash-out limit, is that enough to consolidate your highest-interest credit cards and most urgent debts? Keep in mind that by rolling this all into the new 5.77% loan, we will also be wiping out your current 6.75% mortgage, which immediately saves you money on interest moving forward

Hi Christopher,
It is completely fine to wait until the 1st of the month. However, we can use the time between now and the 1st to get all of your paperwork processed so that we are ready to hit the ground running as soon as the appraisal report is available.

Regarding the Property Value & Your Loan Amount:

If you are looking for $350,000 in cash-out (whether through a second mortgage or rolling it into a full refinance), the total combined debt on the property would be $727,000. Based on our 85% Loan-to-Value (LTV) ratio, a property valued at $600,000 caps the maximum allowable total debt at $510,000.

This means that while there is equity in the property, there is unfortunately not enough equity to support a full $350,000 cash withdrawal. Based on a $510k max loan minus your $377k existing payoff, the maximum cash-out available would be closer to $133,000 (depending on the final appraisal).

What works for you right now?

Good Morning Christopher,

Attached are the wire instructions for your appraisal. Once the payment is processed, please submit the confirmation receipt directly to your Borrower Portal.

To ensure there are no delays in scheduling the inspection, please reply with the following:

1. Name and phone number of the person meeting the appraiser on-site (or let me know if it will be you).
2. Any lockbox codes, gate codes, or special access instructions.
3. Your preferred dates and times for the inspection.

Regarding your question about a Second Mortgage:

We can absolutely look at a second mortgage if there is significant equity remaining in the property. To run those numbers, I just need to know:

What is the current estimated value of the property Once I have that value, I can put together a side-by-side comparison of your two options:

Option A: Second Mortgage. We place a 2nd lien behind your current mortgage. Because these carry a slightly higher risk, the interest rate will be higher than a standard first-position loan.

Option B: Full Cash-Out Refinance (Recommended). We completely pay off your existing mortgage and roll the $350k cash-out into one loan. Since your current loan is at 6.75%, our 5.77% refinance actually lowers your rate and consolidates your debt into one simpler, cheaper monthly payment.

Send over your estimated property value along with those appraisal details, and I will get the comparison drafted for you right away.
